Talk of a new bridge above the old Chain Bridge, now pretty nearly ready to be retired on a pension, stirs up fond hopes of better communications, but Washington remen bers her past with misgivings. Consider how many years it took us to get rid of the old Long Bridge; that the bridge across the Aracostia at the foot of Pennsylvania Avenue, destroyed in 1814, wasn't replaced until 1890; that the "old Aqueduct" was new in the Eighties as a free bridge, and that the Lincoln Memorial Bridge now in course of construction was projected as the Grant Memorial Bridge nearly 50 years ago. As for the South Capitol Street Bridge, promised us half a century since, where is that today?

TILTON'S HIGHWAY SYSTEM IS STUDIED BY PLANNING BODY

Scheme by St. Louis Expert Includes High-Level Bridge Near Georgetown.

CROSSING OF ELLIPSE BY D STREET PROPOSED

Plans for Improving Capitol Plaza Also Considered by Commission.

Study of a system of major thorough fares, including radial and crosstown streets putting all sections within a quarter or half mile distance of major thoroughfares enabling access to all parts of the District with a maximum parts of the District with a maximum of ease and minimum of distance, was undertaken yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission at the first of a four-day session.

First draft of the scheme, prepared by L. D. Tilton, St. Louis traffic expert. contemplates with numerous street-changes a high level bridge a slight distance west of Chain Bridge, above Georgetown, as part of a major traffic way down Western avenue into Loughborough road, across Conduit and Potomac roads, then over the river into Virginia, where it will connect with a road running to Leesburg.

Members of the commission explained that while the tentative plan involves a high level bridge, it was not essential that it replace Chain Bridge, as the latter may be improved as a low-level bridge, and it may be desirable to use both of them.

No Definite Plan Adopted.

No Definite Plan Adopted

No Definite Plan Adopted.

Discussing Mr. Tilton's report, Commissioners made plain they have not adopted a definite plan for or selection of major thoroughfares, but that original suggestions contained in the report would be considered thoroughly with others by the commission, its coordinating committee and the District Commissioners before a final plan is passed upon. This, they said, will also have to do with street widening and priority of street paving.

Among plans suggested for the basic study were the following: Widening of B street already under way as part of the Arlington Memorial Bridge project; widening of Columbia road east of Sixteenth street: extension of D street across the White Lot; extension of Prospect street in Georgetown, east and west from its present line, toward Rock Creek and Foxhall Heights respectively. Better connection from Eleventh street to New Humpshire avenue at Park road, between Monroe street and Park road dwest of Sixteenth, also was suggested. It was explained that Park road is well suited to be a main crossfown street, but is so narrow east of Mount Pleasant street as to be entirely unsuited, and a combination of the thoroughfare with Monroe street is deemed advisable.

Cuts and Extensions.

Cuts and Extensions.

Cuts and Extensions.

Cutting through of W street and Vermont avenue to Georgia avenue west of the baseball park, was suggested further. Street condemnations already ordered in this vicinity will fulfill to some extent the purpose of the cut. Extension of Eleventh street to Kansas avenue, Iowa avenue to Sixteenth street, and better connections between Tenth street and Sherman avenue in the vicinity of Barry place were other recommendations of Mr. Tilton.

He showed by maps how the original recommendations of Mr. Tilton.

He showed by maps how the original central area and pattern of the L'Enfant plan with its triangular streets and diagonal avenues, had become bound with districts like Mount Pleasant, which grew up without regard to a highway plan, then in turn became bound by sections provided for by it. He said a great number of the diffiulties to be encountered in the major nighway plan are due to the fact that considerable area outside the original highway plan are due to the fact that so considerable area outside the original L'Enfant territory grew without any highway planning, and by this process Sixteenth street had become blocked at Florida avenue and had to be cut through to prevent a situation that might easily be imagined without the poperation. While the cutting through of Sixteenth street, he said, was probably more serious than anything considered at the present time, there will be a number of things, such as those previously listed, to provide for a proper traffic flow.

Important Highway Blocked.

Important Highway Blocked.

It was shown there are other important trafficways blocked, such as Vermont, New Jersey and New Hampshire avenues, and Tennessee and North Carolina avenues in northeast Washington, blocked at Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, respectively, Connecticut avenue having been finally extended through by a circuitous route. Columbia road, well estuated to be a crosstown street, it was illustrated, is of satisfactory width from Connecticut avenue to Sixteenth street, but from Sixteenth street on east is much too narrow.

is much too narrow.

Correction of situations like the foregoing is the problem now confronting the commission, and cuts suggested in the commission, and cuts suggested in the original plan promotting major traf-fic atteries, will carry proposals of two sorts, the first involving new planning operations, cost of which will be little, and a second involving correction of mistakes, which will cost.

Two Plans for Capitol Plaza.

The commission had under discussion two plans for development of the area between Union Station and the Capitol, each calling for an avenue running disgonally from Union Station to Pennsylvania avenue, one terminating at the Peace Monument, the other entering Pennsylvania avenue, between between ing at the Peace Monument, the other entering Pennsylvania avenue between Second and Third streets.

It will continue study of the plans presented by David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, and will leave a decision to Congress. The Commissioners are in favor of a large open space north of C street for open air assemblies, and between B and C streets on the west side, space can be left for some future building aligned with the Senate Office Building.

Building.

Today the commission will consider the public building program in the triangle north of the Mail, land purchase items, and the Great Falls power project, which it has temporarily opposed pending thorough consideration. Tomorrow, park and planning commissioners will visit Great Falls.

Henry A. Berliner, president of the Potomac Filing Service, Inc., lessee of Hoover Field, yesterday offered to Maj. W. E. R. Covell, assistant engineer commissioner, who has been placed in charge of the work of providing an airport, the use of Hoover Field for the remainder of the year free of charge. Mr. Berliner explained that should the rental be increased, in view of the fact that the field was used by air mail planes, he would pay the increase. After the first of the year, he said, he would have to ask the District to bear the expense if another field were not found by then.

This width, he explained, should be doubled for night flying.

The planes of the new air mail line, which will begin operation from New York to Atlanta late this summer, and for which the temporary field is to be provided, will pass through Washington at night.

W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general, has warned that unless definite assurance is given by July 15 that a landing field will be provided, Baltimore will be made the stop on the line to the exclusion of Washington. Baltimore, keenly alive to the value of the stop, is making a strong bid for it. The port has been given the National Capital in preference to Baltimore by the Bertefference of Baltimore with Portefference to Baltimore by the Destrefference to Baltimore by the Destrefference to Baltimore by the Bestrefference. ence to Baltimore by the Postoffice Department.

Following the announcement of Mr. Berliner's offer, Hoover Field was put forward as the most desirable temporary field at the luncheon. It was indicated that in line with his suggestion, an effort would be made to obtain use of sufficient adjoining land from the Department of Agriculture, thus giving Hoover Field the necessary width.

Apparently therefore, the plan of the commission, and of other agencies represented at the meeting, is to use Hoover Field as the landing field and air port for several years to come pending the development of a suitable permanent field on the land to be reclaimed between Gravelly Point and Hunter Point.

Land Would Be Reclaimed.

Land Would Be Reclaimed.

In case the Gravely Point site is definitely chosen for the permanent airport there is some question as to the form of the legislation to be presented before Congress. The development of the land undoubtedly would be through appropriations to the Corps of Engineers, who would have charge of reclaiming the land.

The District office of the Engineer Corps has reclaimed the hundreds of acres of land that now compose Anacostia Park, and the reclamation of the land could not be made with the express purpose of providing ground for an airport. Other good uses could be found for it. However, the location has one advantage. If it should demand enlargement it could be enlarged with the addition of more reclaimed land. While the commission and associated agencies went shead with the Hooyer Field idea, the Kenliworth Citi-

John S. Driggers, president of the association, declared that nearly, 300 acres is available for a single continuous field by the inclusion of purchasable adjoining property with the track away. The field is not boggy, he said, is level, and would be ideal. He declared that when Benning road is widened there will be a direct boulevard from the postoffice to the site.

At a meeting of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission late yesterday a committee was appointed to further the work of providing the field. It consists of Col. William B. Ladue, new Engineer Commissioner, exofficio, and any three members of the commission who can be present. In actual practice, however, the members of the commission will work with Maj. Covell. A special committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which Jerome Fanciulli is chalman, also is working with Maj. Covell. This committee will make an inspection of available temporary sites this afternoon.

At the luncheon the necessity of including in the regional plan, sites for emergency landing fields throughout the city for forced landings, was emphasized.

Leaders Predict Reorganization Will Bring Solid Front Against Nationalists.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS WITH CANTONESE FAIL

Ankuochun Expresses Confidence It Can Now Retain Control of Shantung.

Peking, China, June 17 (By A. P.) Sweeping reorganization of the north-ern alliance in China, with Marshal Chang Tso-Lin as political and military dictator, to offer a solid front against the invading nationalists of the South was announced today by a pokesman for the Ankuochun, the present organization of the allied northern armies.

This reorganization, the northerners declare, will surely fuse the northern armies which have been loosely cooperating under the direct leadership of their own commanders and will arouse a new spirit which will restore the importance of Peking, which has been politically dead for the past year. The program of the Ankuochun leaders, who held a conference in Peking lasting a week calls for administrative reforms in the civil rules of the North as well as a unified command of all the northern armies, All the northern war lords have approved the plan, which will wipe out the provincial distinctions between the Shantung. the army and navy and direct responsibility for the civil government which now is in process of formation with Pan Fu, former minister of finance, as premier.

Sweeping administrative changes are not expected to follow the reorganization since Chang Tso-Lin has already commated the Peking cabinet for some time, although now he is expected to take public responsibility for its work.
Pan Fu has announced a program of administrative reforms in the interests of economy and efficiency, but there is some skepticism as to just how much success this will have.

some time, has already ceased to function and has retired to a villa in the

some time, has already ceased to function and has retired to a villa in the hills west of Peking. He is holding aloof from the plans of the new government and probably will not be included in the new cabinet.

It is expected that the new Peking government will be created by mandate of Chang Tso-lin and that it will mean a full constitutional break with the past and the establishment of a frankly military regime.

military regime.

The reorganization is considered a victory of the die-hard element in the Manchurian ranks and a defeat for the ounger element, which had advo-sated a compromise with the south.

Crowds, Awed, Fall Silent.

The crowd, apparently awed by the return of the youth acclaimed by President Coolidge and the kings of England and Belgium as the era's outstanding hero, fell silent. They remained perfectly still and there was only the sound of Col. Lindbergh's motor as he whirled and taxied over the reception committee.

Then there went up a relieved cheer. Another rent the air when Lindbergh opened the door of his plane and slowly crawled out, apparently as fresh as a daisy excepting for a smudge of grease along one cheek.

There was a continuation of cheering at his every movement; while he performed the double function of unlimbering and walking up and down for photographers; while he shook hands with some of his backers in the flight: while he was being greeted by his mother, and while he walked to the sutomobile in which he was whisked away from the field within ten minutes after he landed.

Mother in Background.

Until her illustrious son had seen to the condition of his ship, posed for the picture machines, and greeted a few of his friends, Mrs. Lindbergh remained in the background. She arrived at the field more than an hour before Col. Lindbergh was due, and sat quietly in a big, closed motor car until he was reported over St. Louis. Despite a driving rain falling at the time, she left the car then and walked out on the field, using her open umbrella to sheld herself from photographers. Policemen drove away the picture men.

The precautions against a rush by the crowd were so effective that but few of Lindbergh's personal friends and admirers could get to him.

Misj. Albert B. Lambert, one of the backers of the New York-to-Paris flight, was the first to greet the boy hero.

Brooklyn Rector Holds Plutocracy Opposed to Teachings of Christ.

New York, June 17 (By A. P.) .- Advocates of "sex experiments" are a menace to the community, Bishop William T. Manning, of the Episcopa diocese of New York, declares in a statement made public today, in which he took issue with the Rev. Henry Lewis, rector of St. Andrew's Church Ann Arbor, Mich.

The prediction was made before delegates to the national congress of the Episcopal Church.

The Rev. J. Howard Melish, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., assailed the "American plutocracy," declaring that a churchman can not be a true follower of Jesus unless he ranges and has heard the New Testan

The subject of unions of unmarried persons drew strong comment today by delegates attending the National Congress of the church.

Replying to Bishop Manning's denunciation of the Michigan pastor's views, the Rev. Dr. Guthrie said:

"Bishop Manning does not speak for the church of New York, much less for the Protestant Episcopal Church of America. He speaks only for himself."

"Let us make the matter clear," continued Dr. Guthrie. "Marriage can not be defined authoritatively on rhetorical words put into the mouth of our Lord in St. Matthews' Sermon on the Mount. Granted that he spoke them, he did not intend them to be handed over to the legislature for transmogrification into law.

"When Bishop Manning publicly refused to debate the question of marriage with Judge Ben B. Lindsey on the ground that any question settled by our Lord's words can not be discussed by a Christian man, it seems to us that he is failing in his duty which he swore to perform when he was consecrated a bishop, namely, to banish and drive away from the church all erroneous and strange doctrine contrary to God's word.

The convention also declared the sacraments to be an indispensable means of grace, and warned against regarding infant baptism as "merely an established custom and purposeless ceremony." Members were also warned against worldly frivolity and lusts, and were urged to pray for "a much-needed spiritual awakening and outpouring of the holy spirit."

The synod reiterated its "unswerving confidence in the eighteenth amendment." "While the synod recognizes the fact that in many sections of the country there is much transgression against the law," the resolutions declared, "it would not charge the fault to the amendment but to laxity in enforcement, due to inefficiency and culpable neglect on the part of officers, and, therefore, declares its position to be with the forces that labor for the upholding of this and other laws of our land."

Dr. G. A. Brandelle, of Rock Island, Ill., was reelected president of the Lutheran Augustana Synod for a term of four years.

The proof we furnish in ourselves of the power of Jesus is disclosed less in our professions of faith than our life. We give demonstration by what we are more than by what we say. No greater proof of the resurrection power of Jesus may be given than the universal witness through His church to His persistence in human thought. Upon this fact which bears so immediately upon life's greatest problem the Christian church is builded. In our hours of distress we cry out for the authoritative word of assurance. We stand in the place of Thomas with our honest doubts.

We refuse to believe that "our little life is rounded with a sleep." At such a time all human philosophy fails us, all speculation proves unavailing.

NICARAGUAN MARINE FORCE STARTS HOME

Seventy Sail for San Diego; More to Leave as Soon as Possible. (By the Associated Press.)

The first of the more than 3,000 American marines in Nicaraugua have started for home, the Navy Department was advised yesterday, with the sailing from Corinto of the supply ship Procyon and the tug Partridge with three officers, 66 enlisted men, one hospital corps man, four motor vehicles and 20 tons of aviation equipment. The vessels are due to arrive at San Diego next Saturday.

Secretary Wilbur said that since the military situation in Nicaragua completely had subsided, the marines there would be withdrawn as quickly as possible, although he did not indicate how many would be kept there for policing purposes until the American supervised elections are held in 1928.

Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commanding the special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters, who will be relieved of his special assignment shortly at his own request, because of the illness of his daughter at Balboa, has left Nicaragua with his blue-jacket force.

Rapid City, S. Dak., June 17.—The Army Air Mail Service established between this town and North Platte, Nebr., to handle the executive mail came to an abrupt end today, its second day, at least temporarily.

Coming from North Platte, Sergt. Orville Haynes, piloting the plane, ran into the twister that preceded the hallstorm. He overrode it and then raced into the face of the approaching storm. He made it just in the nick of time; but just as he landed, the storm broke and hall perforated the wings of his machine as if it were papier mache. Unfortunately a second plane resting outside the hangar was similarly put out of business.

PROGRESS IN AVIATION.

Coincident with the arrival of Col. Lindbergh at St. Louis, with a frenzied welcome awaiting him, comes the announcement by the War De partment that a test flight is now being made of a Fokker three-engine plane with a view to making a flight from the Pacific Coast to Hawaii. Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert J. Hegenberger are assigned to make the flight.

The time is at hand when aerial communication between California and Hawaii will be regular. It is a necessity, both in peace and war. The islands are a part of the territory of the United States, forever inseparable from the Nation. They must be developed and held fast. They are essential to the proper guardianship of the Pacific Coast, the Panama and and Alaska. During the Naval Arms Conference now opening at Geneva it may be suggested that the United States should agree not to fortify Hawaii or establish a naval base there. The suggestion should be rejected without de-bate. It is more necessary to fortify Hawaii than to fortify New York City, for it occupies a more important strategic position whose loss would more seriously affect the Nation. Air lines to Hawaii will help to tighten the bond that holds the Territory to the continent, and therefore the War Department's plans to blaze the way to permanent air communication are worthy of hearty commendation. The public enthusiasm over aviation resulting from Lindbergh's achievement is giving a strong impetus to governmental action. No doubt Congress will feel the effect of this acceleration of air science. Liberal appropriations should be made for aviation for the War, Navy, Commerce and Postoffice Departments. The new method of transport is peculiarly adapted to the needs of the United States, where vast distances make other methods of communication slow.

Contrary to general opinion, the rate of mortality among aviators of the Army and Navy is moderate, considering the number of miles flown. The increase of mileage is astonishing. No other country in the world can show a mileage even remotely approaching the American record. As this mileage increases the proportion of fatalities among fliers decreases, notwithstanding the wide scope of experiments in new types of planes and engines. The spirit of the flying men in the Army and Navy is most enthusiastic, and the number of skilled fliers is rapidly increasing.

DEFENDING CONGRESS.

Congress has found a defender in the newly created American Constitutional Association, which has been incorporated, according to its own words, for the purpose of saving the legislative branch of the government from becoming a "rubber stamp" and a "joke." The necessary legal forms of incorporation, election of officers ng of offices have been complied with The mission lies ahead.

What appears to alarm the newly created association more than anything else is the campaign-behind which it sees the sinister form of a "bureaucratic dictatorship"-to belittl and lampoon Congress. It dedicates its services and those of its members to the frustration of this plot and promises to organize every congressional district in order that "the people might be aroused and taught that free government is not self-perpetuating."

This appears to be a new way of saving Congress from itself. It is hard to agree with the organizers of the American Constitutional Association, if it is their belief that the legisla tive branch has done nothing to merit the criticism and sarcasm which has been directed at it of late. In contrast to the "bureaucratic dictatorship," the country need not go far to find evidence of a desire on the part of Congress. more especially the Senate, to set itself up as a power greater than the House, the Executive and the Constitution itself.

When Congress, or either branch thereof, earns public rebuke it will get what is coming to it. All that Congress needs to do in order to win and hold public esteem is to bend to its own business.

FAT DIVIDENDS.

It is estimated that dividends and interest amounting to more than $500,000,000 will be paid to holders of securities, corporate and public, next month. The increase over July, 1926, is estimated at about $50,000,000. Stockholders will receive approximately $130,-000,000 in dividends, while interest to the amount of $420,000,000 will be disbursed. It is estimated that the Government will disburse about $5,000,000 and corporations will distribute more than $415,000,000.

This showing reflects the remarkable prosperity the country is enjoying, and demonstrates that confidence and courage dominate the business world. Bankers appear confident that this volume of trade will continue in-

One of the most gratifying signs is the large increase in the dividends to be paid by industrial corporations. When industry can pay out huge dividends and at the same time pay wages and taxes there is justification of the claim that American business is in an impregnable position. Industrial corporations are owned by the people. When these corporations make profitable progress every citizen is benefited, even if some citizens are opposed to the politico-economic policies that make them and the country prosperous.

Formal announcement of the Lowden candidacy may be expected within the next few weeks, according to a hint thrown out by the governor himself in an address before a dairymen's association at Binghamton, N. Y. Mr. Lowden's address was described as nonpolitical, and might have been a discussion of milk, but it turned out to be a discourse on pork. That is, it was a thinly disguised advocacy of the McNary-Haugen scheme which was vetoed by President Coolidge. The price-fixing feature of that agriculture panacea was thrown overboard in words, but the control of surplus crops, as Gov. Lowden would have it, was so much after the McNary-Haugen pattern that it is hard to understand how he would do the one and not the other.

The voice of the potential candidate is not the only one that has been heard in the past few days. Frank J. Lund, whose last political filliation was that of campaign manager for Senator Brookhart, formally inaugurated the Lowden movement in Iowa on Thursday, and the words of Lund might easily have been taken from the speeches of Brookhart, Support of Lowden was urged because of the veto of the McNary-Haugen bill, the increase in the tariff on pig iron, and permanent extension of the Federal Reserve Board charter, all acts of the Coolidge administration. These same matters were the ones which particularly concerned Mr. Brookhart when he used his privileges as a senator-elect to work against them on the floor of the Senate:

There remain the utterances of Thomas F. Moffat, Lowden's New York manager, to point the way in which Lowden is headed. In a statement made public on Wednesday Moffat referred only by inference to farm relief, but emphasized the importance of the antithird-term tradition and the iniquities of the Coolidge foreign policies.

Further speeches by Gov. Lowden may throw his own views into a sharper light, but he does not disavow the words of his friends. Judging by what has already been said his appeal will be made on a platform in which McNary-Haugenism, the proposals of Brookhart, the third-term issue and an "anti-imperialistic" foreign policy will form the major planks. To fit them together and fill the gaps in between will be an interesting feat of political legerdemain.

RADIO READJUSTMENT.

After several nights' experimenting with its radios under the general reallocation of wave lengths, the public is in doubt as to whether or not conditions have been improved. Since the advent of the new order the air itself has been decidedly noisy, a condition which has made well nigh impossible an unprejudiced opinion. Many, however, report that heterodyning squeals are as much of a bugbear as ever, and that although a few stations have come through with greater clarity, the situation in general has been but little improved.

The new regime has been described by the commission as tentative, and not until after it has been in use 60 days will criticism be received and complaints entertained. In the meantime, at least one station has attacked the validity of the radio control act through the courts, holding that it deprives the broadcaster of his property without due compensation. Such tactics are premature. Under the old order listening-in had become so unpleasant that a general abandonment of his receiving equipment by the radio user was not beyond the bounds of possibility. Should this have come to pass, the property of the broadcaster would have been of no further value whatsoever.

The Radio Commission is doing its best with an extraordinarily difficult jab. It is not reasonable to suppose that within the first two or three nights after a new schedule was put into effect order would have been brought out of chaos. Broadcasting stations must be given time to adjust their equipment down to a hair's breadth. The commission must be given the opportunity to ascertain on which wave lengths interference persist, in order to make whatever further minor adjustments in the schedule may be found necessary.

A GREAT HISTORIAN.

The death of John Bagnell Bury, regius proessor of modern history at Cambridge University, England, has removed one of the mos noted historical writers of the day. The son of clergyman who afterward became canon of Clogher, J. B. Bury was born in 1861 in the County of Monaghan, Ireland, and received his early education at home and in a neighboring private school. He entered Trinity College, Dublin, as a sizar in the great era made famous by the conjunction of three such educational lumi naries on the teaching staff as Profs. Palmer, Tyrrell and Mahaffy. The young student won every possible honor in classics, and it seemed for a time that the literature of Greece and Rome was destined to deflect him from what was to prove his life work. His taste for the classics and his special erudition in Greek, as well as his fine literary sense, were amply demonstrated by his meticulously scholarly annotations to, and renderings of, the "Nemean Odes" and the "Isthmian Odes'

Advised, however, by Mahaffy to devote himself to the study of late Roman history, Bury took up the task with ardor, and in 1889 the fruits were visible, when he published "A History of the Later Roman Empire From Arcadius to Irene," a work which many competent critics judge to be his best. Four years later he was appointed professor of modern history in the University of Dublin, and in that post made so marked an impression that, when the regius professorship in the same subject be came vacant at Cambridge on the death of Lord cton, Bury was in 1902 elected to that distinguished chair. Since then his publications have been numerous, including a "Life of St Patrick and His Place in History" and "The Ancient Greek Historians," the latter a reeasting of the Lane Lectures, which he delivered at Harvard University in 1908. He als edited, with valuable critical appendices. Gib on's "Decline and Fall" and the same author's "Autobiography." Gibbon, indeed, exercised tent of confirming the later scholar in his po-sition as a convinced Rationalist. He did not, however, accept Gibbon's "principle of decay" as one of the causes of the fall of the Western Roman Empire, but ascribes its collapse to "a series of contingent events."

Bury did not contribute greatly to what is known as the philosophy of history. His genius lay rather in establishing a true and consistent narrative from confusing or meager records, his aim being to treat history, as far as possible in a scientific spirit. In this aim he largely succeeded, but in doing so he occasionally alienated the interest of his readers.

Many honors came to him, tributes to the esteem in which he was held by learned bodies as a great modern historian.

FOOL PREACHERS.

Many newspaper readers have been shocked by the strange words and teachings ascribed to speakers before the congress of the Enisconal Church in America. Defense of "unmarried unions," advocacy of "sex experiments" and characterization of the New Testament as having been written "by a lot of chumps," cerfainly fail to reflect the opinions of members of that church.

There is nothing new in what these notoriety-seekers have said. The world has been, and will continue to be, afflicted with the views of those who think that civilization may only be improved by destruction of the conventions and who believe that evil may only be wiped out by yielding to it. It is, how ever, both new and strange to find advocates of moral defeatism within the ministry. What is the duty of the shepherd, if it is not to defend his flock against wolves?

The fitting answer has been given by Bishop Manning, of New York. "Certainly any man who defends or approves unmarried unions is out of place in the ministry of the Episcopal Church or any other church," he says. clergyman who should advocate these views, if mentally responsible, would be a dishonor to the Christian Church and a menace to the community."

If the statements attributed to these ministers were actually made, it is high time for the church in question to divest them of the cloth they have disgraced.

SHERLOCK HOLMES, DECEASED.

Sherlock Holmes is dead. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who made this hero of fiction the outstanding detective in the world, himself announced the passing, and so the central figure in a score of criminal episodes becomes the victim of foul play himself. Who know but Scotland Yard, which was held to scorn by the creator of Sherlock Holmes, will investigate the deep damnation of his taking off?

The author of the world's most famous sleuth, whose deductions seemed no more miraculous to the ubiquitous Watson than they did to the world at large, insists that Holmes has "outlived his time." With that statement the public will differ. Few persons there are who have not followed with thrilling interest the mental workings of this most remarkable man, and spurned sleep until the end of the book for fear that the horror of the unsolved crime might be a dream companion,

The more prosaic truth is that Sir Arthur has probably "outlived" his character. Sherlock Holmes with all his reasoning power no longer interests the man who is now foremost among those who see no barrier to communication between this world and the next. If Holmes, who did die once and then was re-created, should come to life again, it would most likely be as a mystic rather than a logician that he would walk the fields of fiction.

Even if Sherlock Holmes remains in the nental tomb where he has now been placed, his works will live after him. No form of fiction now has a stronger hold upon public fancy than the mystery story which Conan Doyle did so much to establish. Where once there was only Holmeses there are now countless heroes to whom all things are apparent and who know no perfect crime. Many of the world's busiest and most intellectual men find surcease in such reading. Sir Arthur can kill the master but he can not destroy the

THE NEW GOLF KING.

The golf world now looks to Washington. Tommy Armour, Congressional Country Club professional, became the open champion of the United States yesterday afternoon, bringing the honor to the Capital for the first time in the history of the game. He took the title over a course so severe that only three men in the field were able to get under par during the entire tournament. He came from behind in the first 72 holes to tie Harry Cooper, and in the play-off, the final test of skill and courage, captured the title by a margin of three strokes

A notable golfing career and a splendid war record have been crowned by the most coveted prize within the reach of a golfer. The sense of regret with which the sports world regards the passing of the old king, Bobby Jones, is tempered by its admiration for the new ruler, Tommy Armour.

Ask For What You Want

By ROBERT QUILLEN_

E VERYBODY wishes to be well-mannered—that is, everybody except the victims of arrested development who think it an accomplishment to be hard-boiled.

Rich and poor, high and low, learned and ignorant, all unite in exercising good manners, coveting good manners or admiring good manners.

Good manners consist largely in pleasing the other fellow-being humble in order that he may feel important, being silent in order that he may talk, standing in order that he may sit.

This desire to please the other fellow-universal in the well-bred and in those who wish to seem well-bred-frequently requires one to say 'yes" when one might prefer to say "no." Inability to say "no" is counted a weakness, and a weakness it is in many instances, but usually it is no more than a manifestation of good manners.

Now consider how you may harness this trait of human nature and make it plow for you. There are things you desire and desire hopelessly. You are resigned to hopelessness. You think you haven't a chance to get them and so of American youth, for he is not a you make no effort to get them. Have you ever tried asking for them? You haven't. And yet all that is required to get many of them is the simple business of asking. How much you forfeit unnecessarily! There's a kiss you might have -a day off-an increase of pay-a better job-and nothing to defeat your desire except silence.

Other people hesitate to say "no" just as you do. They might wish to refuse any one of these things if you should ask for it, but the unwillingness to hurt a fellow mortal and the unwillingness to seem ungracious would dictate their answer.

It won't work every time, of course. No rule does. But this much s true: If you will make it a practice to ask for what you want, and queathed to every nation, and one of ask in the right tone of voice, the refusals will be few and you will get a great many things you never could get without asking.

If you think this "applesauce," you don't know human nature; and in any case a little experimentation will cost you nothing. Only don't overdo it. The "nervy" belong to the pest family.

Howell was stabbed in the neck and his jugular vein severed by a knife in the hands of the girl following a prolonged alteraction, according to Chief of Police Will Whitener, who was in a downstairs office at the city hall when the tragedy occurred. The girl was arrested immediately after the stabbing. The couple had gone up to a room occupied by Chief Whitener while Whitener and Howell were on duty, according to Whitener. Howell and Miss Carnes had been engaged in conversation when the young woman became bolsterous and the chief remonstrated, telling her to keep quiet. She exhibited a knife and threatened him. Whitener said he left the room after she had been quieted.

Going down stairs to his office, Whitener said, the girl soon became bolsterous again. He hurried up stairs, he said, and found Howell lying on the floor, dying from a knife wound in his neck. The girl was standing close by Whitener arrested her and placed her in the county jail.

An inquest this morning, under the direction of Dr. J. F. Abel, returned a verdict that Howell "came to his death from, wounds infilted by a knife in the hands of Dolly Carnes."

Canadian High Court Bars Third Degree

Ottawa, Ontario, June 17 (By A. P.). The Supreme Court of Canada today set the stamp of its disapproval on any police methods in Canada savoring of the third degree, although the term itself is not used. In spite of the fact that we are i homemakers' column, and thus devoted to matters pertaining to the home and its needs, I can not resist a temptation to comment on this young person who has returned from a journey into an unknown realm and returned to find fame. I wonder how many young men of his few summers would have within them the capacity to accept with as little ado the ovation that has come to this youth because of his daring. And I wonder, too, how many mothers among us wish that their son might, not necessarily receive the acclaim or the fame, but have within them the same qualities that have marked this boy for what we find most splendld in the youth of our country, and, consequently, for which we have named him the representative of our youth—a typical American. I wonder, too, which course this wise, charming mother, who seems so close to Charles Lindbergh, has pursued in raising her son to this estate at 25-go for it is, after all largely to the mother that is tall and straight and fine Do you fancy this boy was spoiled as a small child, spoiled and pampered? Rather not, I think, since his resources are so well developed now. I should suspect rather that this boy has known responsibility from his very early days, and that his capacity to shoulder it now, graciously and with unobtrusive on his safe return is her first and last gratitude at this time of salutation.

And I fancy, too, that the very fact of his safe return again to the matters of the day that ever await the rest of the day that ever await the soft his safe return again to the matters of salutation.

She laid the manuscript away with a bitter, twisted smile. Some day, perhaps, she would submit it directly to a producer, though she knew only too well how little consideration the first play of a young, unknown writer would receive; also, in the back of her mind lurked the memory of Sanford's word; were discovered to the disconsolate droop of her lips; the new cynicism that had crept into her eyes.

Christine declined Nina's Friday night invitations after that. She was afraid she might meet Sanford the mere thought.

She was a home every evening doing odd bits of advertising copy which brought in very welcome money, but mostly she played with her children, sitting on the well-worn hearth-rug like a little girl, building castles out of blocks, marching toy soldiers, pretending to be a bear in a cave, or an Indian on the warpath.

In after years, she was thankful that she had had these evenings with her little son. Somehow, she could never remember Louise in the picture at all; it was always Junor, laughing, prancing, flushed of cheek and bright of eye, his blond hair shining in the lamplight.

Christine flung herself beside the cot where her son lay. He was white and limp, but her frantic hand assured her that his pulse fluttered feebly!

She didn't even notice little Louise, sitting quietly in a corner, distress written on her face and the tears flowing.

Christine never remembered very clearly afterward how she dashed out of the house and ran up Fifth avenue, searching the houses for a physician's sign. People turned to stare at the desperate, white-faced woman who eye open for any new tidbits. Sunday, as you know, is the night at the Ritz and the smart world gathers automatically.

EAR Claribel: The weather is getting too divine now, and every one is expanding under the friendly rays of the summer sunshine. The national pastime seems to be divided between going to the races and picnicing at large anywhere between Paris and Fontainebleau.

I saw, on a woman of the British nobility, the most charming and becoming evening slippers I have yet seen. I know that I say that very often, but this time I am sure I mean it and will remain true to my statement for at least six months. These particular ones are pale green satin sandals with beautiful flexible buckles in diamonds. My sketch doesn't nearly do them justice; they are really ravishing. Another lovely slipper that I saw on a very chic Argentine lady was this one of sliver kid. Instead of the conventional buckle, it has a diamond lotus blossom, and somehow I think this will appeal more to you than the other. They are both the very best that can be had in footwear for the evening.

There is nowhere in the world like Parls that the same degree of excellence and taste is expended on imitation jewels. For only in Parls do they cease to be jewelry and attain the dignity of being termned jewels. Here is a perfect example of, what can be achieved. This lady is wearing a ribbon made of three strands of pearls rather large than small. At the right-hand side there is set in to the clasp a large cabochon emerald. On her left shoulder she wore a pin composed of four large diamonds, each of which varled from the other in shape and cut. Her earrings were lovely creamy pearshaped pearls with small diamonds in the setting. All these jewels are beautiful in design and workmanship, and it is because of that that they get their effect.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

Durability of Love.

THE following letters demonstrate the cynfcal attitude of most men today toward love. Age seems not to make any difference. Old enough to know better, or young enough to be less blass, they seem to be unanimous on one score—that love is a myth, woman a joke, and nothing lasts but the moment of its life. Sad day for youth! Sad morrow for youth and age.

Dear Miss McDonald: Your very re-

Dear Miss McDonald: Your very remarkable query "Does love last?" prompts me to mirth—but I shall forbear sweet lady, since so much that you say and have said/appeals to me most strongly. But whence this medieval lapse, whence this venture into bygone days and ways? Modern one how can you ask! Have you not "loved?" And dit last? Did you expect it would? Does the rose "last?" And surely more ephemeral than any blossom ever plucked is that tangible fleeting thing of touch and sense and passing swift delight, that we call love! Love born of a moment. Tenderly caressed then gone. And let it be gone! Why have it back? I have prayed for smiles and begged for kisses—not over hard—and had all for the asking—and gone my way content. Why loiter? nard—and had all for the asking—and gone my way content. Why loiter? Why hang on love's neck, spoiling the picture? Why demand what life was never designed to give? Why rob life—of its greatest delight—variety? For shame fair lady of the fluent pen! Love like the rose does not last—but there are ever roses!

CAROLINE

Dear Miss McDonald: Your very re-

are ever roses!

And then youth speaks!

Dear Miss McDonald: Call me cailow youth if you will. I am 24. Still in university, but have sampled a few of the so-called joys of life. And I certainly have found, as many of my companions here, that love has none of the lasting qualities of which you and the poets seem so ardnetly to sing. Love, as far as I can see, is a fleeting attraction which enables a woman to get possession of everything she craves and which fools man into a condition, mental and physical, where he will part with his soul for a moment. But even with his mit does not last. He is forever chasing something, losing it in near acquaintance and attendant dis-illusionment, seeing it depart, and relieved at its departure. It seems to me that men and women today do not require that love should last. Disillusionment hurts, but so do other salutary things—why cry over them? There was a time when manners, customs and ways of life were such that it was desirable for all to believe that love was unaltered. It was economically wise so to believe. Today, with changing ways and the infinite variety of the universe revealed, it is less necessary—in fact, far from desirable—for any to believe in such uncomfortable legends. Love does not last—because there is no such animal. Let all admit And then youth speaks!

EARNEST READER.

Answer—The only worry you should, at your age, have about your skin is that you must never forget to wash it thoroughly with pure soap and warm water before going to bed, and to freshen yourself by dashing cold water on your face in the morning. You are coryoung to use even powder! A shiny nose (and I doubt that you will have it when you go back to common-sense measures) is not out of tune with youth—so don't worry about it. The soap mentioned in your letter is to be recommended if you find that it agrees with your skin. Exercise, as I have said many times before in this column, is the great leveller—it develops firm flesh and muscle, as well as reduces the overweight parts. All exercise involving leg movements are beneficial. Simply arising on tip-toe many times during the day will help develop the calf of your leg. Walking, swimming, tennis and running should be enjoyed as much as possible. Nightly massage with cooca-butter, using the palm of the hand in a rotary movement, will help to put some flesh on these parts.

Keep the "pit holes" in your forehead perfectly clean and always use plently of cold water after washing to contract the pores. Occasionally, apply a little witch hazel after washing. Clean hair forms its own satisfactory halo around the head. Wash your hair every two weeks, comb and brush it well each day and never "tease" or "rough" it in an effort to make it stand out. New York, June 17.—Stocks were subjected to profit taking throughout most of today's moderately active session by the more timid bulls who were unwilling to carry commitments over the week-end and who deemed it wise to get out of long stocks in the hope that they might repurchase them on Monday at lower levels. That selling imparted an irregular appearance to the trading, but the market absorbed all offerings exceptionally well.

Naturally much of the profit selling was among those issues which had enjoyed the greatest advance since Monday's slump. Bears were quick to sense the appearance of profit taking and endeavored to turn it to their own benefit by adding to the pressure in the hope of again starting a general reaction, but in this they were disappointed. In fact a long list of stocks finished the day with substantial net gains ranging from 1 to 9% points, and soveral new high records were established. A large majority of the recessions were in the fractional class, although a few extended to as much as 3 points.

Credit conditions were easier, call money renewing at 4 per cent for the first time since May 23. Outside funds were available at 3½ per cent. There was no news development of importance to affect the market either way. Such strength as appeared was pretty well restricted to the motors, ralls, food and merchandizing shares and a few specialties. General Motors climbed to a new top, then sold off more than 2 points, to end fractionally net lower. Most of the other motors classed of after early strength. New Haven, St. Paul, Lehigh Valley, Chicago & Northwestern, Great Northern, N. & W., Western Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Pennsylvania and Northern Pacific were the most active among the carrier stocks and closed with good gains.

The only way we would consider a merger would be for Montgomery Ward to buy all our capital stock, but I don't think there is any possibility of the companies merging. Our business fell off as a result of the Mississippi fiood, but I expect business this year will be greater than a year ago, and earnings also."

New York, June 17 (By the Associated Press).—Signs of a reviving investment demand for bonds were seen in today's market, aithough no rush of buying developed. It was pointed out in financial circles that the recent gradual recession in prices has brought them near a point where the high-grade securities again appear attractive to the investing public.

Belief that the July reinvestment demand will help to clear away some of the accumulated new issues was given new strength by estimates that a record-breaking amount, exceeding half a hillion dollars, will be paid in dividends and interest next month.

Convertible issues were again active, aithough profit taking late in the session wiped out most of the advances. International Telephone 5½ fell back 1½, but Delaware & Hudson convertible 5s gained 3 points in the wake of the company's stock.

Seaboard Air Line adjustment 5s were the center of interest in the rail group, more than $200,000 changing hands at fractionally better prices. Chicago and New York Traction issues received good support.

A few French, Italian municipal and Polish bonds were relatively active, with prices saggl ig slightly. Reports of forthcoming new loans to Italian cities, unidentified as yet, may have influenced bonds of that order.

American Radiator Co.

American Radiator Co.

The American Radiator Co. has for many years been considered the largest manufacturer of radiators, bollers and other heating apparatus and appliances. In addition it has developed special products such as vacuum cleaners, lubricating devices and carburetors which have done much to balance its operations.

The company has enjoyed a very consistent growth. In 1926, for example, net income totaled $12,209,174, as compared with a net profit of only $2,656,214 reported back in 1919. Last year's earnings were equal to $406.97 per share of preferred stock and to $9.66 on the common stock, as compared with earnings on these two issues in 1925 of $378.59 and $8.90, respectively.

The strong financial position of the company is indicated by its net working capital which, at the end of 1926, was in excess of 33 million dollars, a new high record. The ratio of total current assets to total current liabilities is better than seven to one.

Dividends on the common stock are now on a $5 annual basis following an advance from $4 paid in 1926. There have been numerous stock dividends in the company's history, the last one being a 50 per cent declaration in 1924. Stock dividends of 50 per cent were also paid in 1917 and 1920.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago June 17 (By A. P.).—All grain underwent a material setback in price today. Prospects of clearing and warmer weather both in the wheat harvest region southwest and throughout the corn belt had a bearish effect. Wheat closed weak, 1% to 2% cents net lower, with corn 1½ to 2 cents down oats, ½ to % cent off, and provisions showing 10 to 20 cents declined corn even more so displayed a net ward slant on accountinued low temperatures and anywhence moisture over the corn belt. It soon became evident, however, that for at least the time being the entire grain list had been overbought, and that new demand was insufficient to withstand the weight of heavy selling to realize profits on bulges. Houses with Northwestern and Southwestern connections became active sellers of wheat, and the fact that export call for shipments from North America was slow counted as a further weight on values.

Despite active general buying of corn early and consequent sharp upturns, the corn market turned downward in the last half of the day. Iowa crop reports especially were bullish, but were offset by the circumstance that corn prices had risen 12 cents a bushel in less than a week.

One Iowing season is June-planted than was ever before known. A leading trade authority referring to the corn belt as a whole said more corn expectations followed the trend of grain.

Rookie Drives Coveleskie, Freed by Nats, Will Attempt Comeback

Veteran Spitballer Seeks to Recover Pitching Form.

Crowder to Oppose Whitehill Today in Third Game.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH.
Sports Editor The Post.

While Horace Lisenbee, a pitching recruit from Memphis, was holding the Detroit Tigers in check. Bob Reeves, a recruit from Ceorgia Tech, was driving in enough runs to allow the Washington team to recruit another ball game. Three to one was the score.

A good time was had by all the recruits in the Washington incup. Lisenbee allowed Detroit only six hits and registered his eighth victory of the eason in the American League, which not bad for a recruit. Bob Reeves, ith two well-timed base hits, drove all of Washington's three runs, and tuffy" Stewart, substituting for Maner Harris at second base, was a table demon in the field, cutting off is with regularity.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WHILE admitting that he may be "down," Stanley Coveleskie, veteran spit-ball pitcher, who was released by the Nationals yesterday morning, declares that he is far from "out." He plans to leave for his name in Shamokin, Pa., this morning, to start off immediately on a three-week's lim in tip-top physical condition, and then to start a come-back attempt by trying to get his arm in shape.

"I'll be back in the big leagues long before the season ends," the veteran told the writer last night. And maybe will, but if he does, he certainly will fool both Manager Harris, President of whom waived on him. So certainly will fool both Manager Harris, all of whom waived on him. So certainly error which is one said by the Washington officials that the spitballer is through that they gave him is one said by unconditional release instead of keeping title to him by having the plans to leave for his name in Shamokin, Pa., this morning, to start off immediately on a three-week's him in tip-top physical condition, and the other to start a come-back attempt by trying to get his arm in shape.

"I'll be back in the big leagues long before the season ends," the veteran told the writer last night. And maybe he will, but if he does, he certainly will fool both Manager Harris, President in the veteran told the writer Reeping and on the "voluntarily retired list." In case "Covey" is successful in his come-back attempt, he now has the privilege of selling his services to the highest bidder.

In passing out of the baseball picture, Coveleskie leaves an excep-tional record behind him, both as a player and a gentleman both on and off the field. Griffith and Har-

The release of the veteran probably is due to the fact that the Washington club is not doing well financially this season. Several good dates have been lost and, with the team playing in-and-out ball, the Nats have not proven a good drawing card. If the club was CONTINUED ON PAGE 15, COLUMN 4

Dempsey had announced he would not

Tunney, under the impression that the Sharkey-Dempsey melee would be Rickard said he expected no difficulty in ironing out that part of his relations with Dempsey when the Manassa mauler, with three months of training under his fistic belt, reaches New York Tuesday morning. The promoter saw no chance of the championship match slipping from under his

WHISKERY FACES STAR FIELD IN AMERICAN DERBY

Whitney Colt Favorite in Classic

Eight 3-Year-Olds to Compete Today for $25,000 Stake.

Tydromel, Bob Rogers, Buddy Bauer, Dolan Are Starters.

HICAGO, Ill., June 17 (By A. P.).—
The American Derby, once one of the turf classics of the Nation, will be decided at Washington Park tomorrow in the second year of its resival, with eight star 3-year-olds racing over the mile and a half route for a purse of $25,000.

The eight starters are Herry Payer.

over the mile and a half routs for a purse of $25,000.

The eight starters are Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskery, winner of the $50,000 Kentucky Derby: E. R. Bradley's Buddy Bauer, J. N. Camden's Hydromel, E. F. Cooney's Dolan, Hal Price Headley's Handy Mandy, W. S. Heaton's Bob Rogers, Black and White, owned by the Pueblon Stable, and Aregal, carrying the colors of the Wildrose Farm.

Whiskery will carry top weight of 126 pounds, the penalty for his victory in the Kentucky Derby, and Buddy Bauer must carry 121 pounds because of his triumph over Whiskery in winning the $25,000 Fairmount Derby. Handy Mandy is the only filly in the race.

As the race shapes up, the experts figure it to be a battle between Whiskery and Hydromei, with Whiskery the public choice. Buddy Bauer is ranked a contender and the others are given a chance, Whiskery has started in three of the big 3-year-old stakes this season and has not been unplaced. He captured the Sentucky Derby, finished second in the almount, and third in the Preakness. Fairmount, and third in the Freakness. The field is rated as a far better one than met here a year ago, when the derby was revived after a long lapse since Grover Cleveland Fuller rode Highbail to victory at old Washington Park back in 1905. Last year E. R. Bradley's Boot to Boot won the race with Display second and Black Maria third.

Nine-Year-Old Star, With Fator Up, Defeats Field of Four at 11 to 20 Odds in Comeback, Under Wraps.

A QUEDUCT, June 17.—Displaying all of that speed which carried him to the top of the handicap division in 1923 and 1923, the Bancocas Stable's 9-year-old Grey Lag, after an absence of four years from the track, came back today in a condition affair at 1 mile and won galloping from J. 25,000 DERBY. Out at Washington Park this afternoon the 1927 renewal of the American Derby will be run and won. The race, which is at one and one-half miles, the true "Darby" distance, carries a monetary value of $25,000. Unfortunately, the race has not attracted the hoped for "pick" of the 3-year-old division, but WHISK-ERY, winner of the Kentucky Derby, and BUDDY BAUER, winner of the Fairmount Park Renewal, also DOLAN are named over night, while HYDRO-MEL has been sent on from Latonia. The balance of the field are doubtful starters or should be.

On paper it would seem that WHISK-ERY should be returned an easy winner. The Whitney representative rules a 4 to 5 favorite, while the others are quoted at 4 to 1.

In Cleveland that year the vet-eran was referred to as "Tris" Big Mistake," for he proceeded to lead the league in two departments, his mark of 20 victories and 5 defeats giving him highest percentage of triumphs, while his 2.84 run aver-age per came put him in front as age per game put him in front as regards effectiveness. Incidentally, his brilliant performance helped the Nats cop their second Ameri-can League title.

Last season he won fourteen and lost eleven, and gave promise of being an effective flinger this year. For a short spell he looked good at the Tampa spell he looked good at the Tampa training camp, but then his arm began bothering him, his power disappeared, and he finally faded out of the big league picture. He says he will come back, and there are thousands of fans both here and throughout the United States, who will rejoice with him if he is successful in his efforts.

Manager Harris yesterday would give no logical reason for his withdrawal from the Nat line-up in favor of Stuffy Stewart. That the change was made on the spur of the moment is indicated by the fact that, before the game, the blackboard in the Nat locker oom showed the manager as filling the second-base berth.

As Harris always has been a fighter, the undeserved "razzing" he received at the hands of the fans in Thursday's game, when he followed nineteen games of error-less ball with an off day afield, can not be the cause. He probably simply followed one of his well-known hunches and, the manner it a good one.

Bucky's explanation means nothing, but, for the benefit of the curious, here it is: "It though! I would stay out for a while so the girls would give me a regular Lindbergh reception when I came back."

Alvin Crowder, who hurled a brilliant game against the White Sox Monday, will do the Washington flinging, with Southpaw Earl Whitehill probably getting the call from Manager Moriarity.

Another pitcher also left the Nat ranks yesterday, the Harrismen selling Dick Snelling, Uni-ersity of Dayton re-cruit, to the Jersey City International Leaguers. No strings were retained on the youngster, who left for his new baseball home last night.

Pitcher "Rip" Collins' desire to play catch with First Baseman Lu iliue with men on bases in yesterday's game did not make a hit with the fans. It's part of the game to try 'n hold runners on the bases, but the Tiger pitcher three so often as to buriesque his efforts.

Under this handlosp he swung his mashie niblick and the ball, soaring into the air, hit the side of a trap guarding the green and fell back into the sand. He played one of Freddie McLeod's out-of-traps shot, with the face of his niblick isid well back, but he took too much sand and the ball barely reached the green. With two putts he was down in 5, while Cooper holed out in a par 4.

"He's breaking now," said the people in the gallery, and there seemed to be svery reason in the world for their assertion. "It isn't over yet!" said Charley Rowe, the Cakmont professional, as he walked down the twelfth fairway and, as the final result showed, it wasn't over.

Once again, after the drives from the fifteenth tee, the door was opened 're Armour. Cooper, playing first, pulled his iron shot into the deep trap on the left of the green, but somehow or other Armour's wrists seemed to turn as he made his second shot and his ball also found a resting place in the trap.

Armour played out and overran the cup to the far edge of the expansive green, almost in the rough, while Cooper's ball was about 30 feet away. Then came the really sensational feature of the round. Believe it or not. Armour ran down his putt for a 4. It was a wonderful putt, the ball rolling with never a quiver across a distance of fifty or sixty feet and falling into the cup amid a roar of applause that literally shook the sky.

Cooper smiled a sort of ghastly smile and attempted to duplicate the feat. His ball actually hit the cup, but did not drop. The strokes were now all even. Speaking of this putt afterward, Armour said that it was the turning point of the match. "When that putt went in the cup," he said, "I felt certain that the championship was mine."

In one of the earlier stories of this tournament, the statement was made that the title would be won or lost on the last four holes of the Oakmont course. It was won today by Armour course. It was won today by Armour the head been lucky enough to win a title, which is the height of every coller's ambition. Then he expressed.

ball out of the deep depression. He played again and overran the cup. Armour, with one of the best shots he made during the round, pitched his ball with his mashie niblick to within a foot of the pin. He holed out in 3 Cooper took 5. The hope of Washington for the championship was now two strokes ahead and only two holes to play. Instead of being a front-horse player. Cooper was now struggling against a lead which nothing but a miracle could overcome.

The seventeenth hole, 302 yards, is a long drive uphili. When the drives had been made, both balls lay almost side by side in the fairway. Cooper was away by a yard or two and pitched his ball to within six inches of the pin.

Turning "pro" in 1923 Armour had little success in the big tournaments at first, finishing well down the list in the 1924 and 1923 "opens" and landing in the money for the first time last year at Columbus. Last winter the Washington "pro" showed big improvement, partnering with Crulckahank to win team match honors in Fiorida.
